

Google Glass

On July 27th, 2012 during the opening keynote of I/O developer's conference, Google's co-founder Sergey Brin surprised media and the world with a demo of the company's Google Glass Project. Greeted with much fan-fare by the audience, they were amazed by an impressive group of skydivers jumping from a blimp and landing on the conference center wearing the Google Glasses.

Attendees to the conference were taken aback when they were offered the opportunity to pre-order a Google Glass "Explorer Edition" test unit for the price of $1500. Crystal Sensations® manufactured Thin Cut Rectangles to serve as vouchers and commemorative gifts for those who came on. Each crystal rectangle features the unique identifying number of the Google Glass unit that would be provided.

